The London Dramatic News has the following regarding Mrs. Bixby: Maria Parcello Bixby has a pure contralto voice of three octaves of very rich Alboni-like quality. Signor Pizzi, who wrote the opera Gabriella for Madame Patti, has written several songs for Mrs. Bixby's voice to display its unusual compass.

We must not leave out Asia Wiggs for she was an artist. The material to work with seems such an expense to Mrs. Wiggs, but if painting was her forte she must have a chance. So she went to a store and they charged her 7c cents for a little boxful. She thought that a mighty heap. Then she went to a paint shop and Mr. Becker found a lot of "red and varnish blue" and only charged her a nickel and "dressed in" a paint brush. "I'll tell you," says Mrs. Wiggs, "she painted a heap with it. She even painted the window glass to cover up a crack, that run the whole length of the window." Don't fail to see this noted artist at the Universalist vestry, Feb. 15-16.
